

Emotions boil on school committee

by Arlene Surprenant

It looked like a committee meeting of old as Wilmington School Committee members struggled to contain emotions in dealing with a sensitive student problem at the high school. What made progress difficult during last Wednesday's heated discussion was the lack of specific facts provided to members and claims on the part of some present that proper procedure hadn't been followed.

Committeeman Shirley Callan had the incident, involving an 18 year old drop-out and school administrators, put on the agenda the week before. In an explosion of anger, Callan explained Wednesday that the student in question, Kim Conwell, told her she was being "driven out" of the high school. Callan placed the blame on the administration.

"I thought things had changed (at the high school, but) nothing has changed," she said, her voice rising.

According to a version of the incident by Conwell herself, Assistant Principal Jack Lynch approached her in the hall last October and said "why don't I drop out because I'm not going to graduate anyway." Conwell said she was supposed to graduate last year. She claimed someone promised her she would graduate this year, despite problems in ninth grade and numerous absences from school. "Because of the alleged comment by Lynch, Conwell told the committee, she left school for two months and only recently returned."

"I do all the work...I do get good grades. Why should I go if I'm not going to graduate?" she asked.

In the past, Conwell has had several evaluations through the special needs department. Special Education Director Cleo Fredette told the committee Conwell was due for her annual progress review on February 1 to determine if she will graduate this June. He said it was "inconceivable" to him how any promise to graduate could be made without this review, adding that "my office is not aware of any open promise."

In a prepared statement on behalf of the administration, WHS Principal Paul Fleming said they would not discuss the incident because they were unclear about what was expected and, thus, couldn't adequately prepare. He pointed out if the discussion was relative to a professional reputation, they were entitled to 48 hours notice. When Fleming referred to Callan's "distain" for the present administration and made other innuendoes, he was brought up short by Mitchell Spirits, who reprimanded him for pre-judging a committee member.

"I can't understand why this is being allowed here tonight," said Bridget Zukas, explaining if they let one student settle problems at this level, all students would follow suit.

Horan and several committee members agreed, especially since they were in the dark on specific facts surrounding the whole issue. They argued that the proper procedure, which is to discuss the problem first at the building level, second with central administration, and last with the school committee, wasn't being followed in this case.

At one point, Horan chastised Callan saying, "no individual committee member has a right to deal with a parent directly." He pointed out that, under the bylaws, she was a member of a group and may action must be taken as a group.

It was decided, in the end, that Conwell would make an appointment with the superintendent to try to work through the problem. If the meeting wasn't successful, the issue would be brought up once again at the next committee meeting.

The supertrunk is coming to town

by Arlene Surprenant

Greater Boston Cable Corp. will begin laying the supertrunk for Wilmington's new cable system in February and is expected to convert to the new system in May.

Under the present timetable, said Cable TV Advisory Task Force member Pat Hoffman, some residents will get the new system as early as May while others may have to wait until November, when the whole town should be complete.

According to Hoffman, each subscriber will get a new Scientific Atlanta Box with an individual code. The box will contain a timer feature, a parental lock-out, the time of day, and a pay-per-view feature for first run movies, slated for use after a year. Extra features not included in the original agreement, he added, include a scientific information channel; a financial news network, which provides constant financial information like the Dow Jones averages; a home shopping network; and an electron program review which previews what will be shown on each channel.

Hoffman assures subscribers that the task force will remain active "to make sure Greater Boston lives up to the license agreement." If residents develop problems or are not satisfied with the new system, they should write a letter to the town manager and the complaint will be reviewed by the task force. Hoffman added there will be a local office, probably set up at town hall, to make sure the cable company is more accessible to local citizens.

The task force is looking for volunteers with a knowledge of engineering, accounting, and law to donate some time to the corporation. They will also be looking for an access manager and possibly an operations manager and a technical director. Hoffman, Bill Finer, and Ed Rideout will be moving from the task force to the corporation as members of the Board of Directors.

Vietnamese pair arrested on gun charges

A Wilmington connection to the much-publicized Vietnamese Ping On gang has surfaced during the past week with arrests in Somerville and Wilmington.

On Wednesday, two Wilmington residents were among four men arrested at the Assembly Square Mall in Somerville with a large quantity of heroin. Two brothers, Van Huy Huynh, 41, and Van Quang Huynh, 25, both of 23 Faulkner Ave., Wilmington were arrested after they allegedly delivered a pound of "China White" heroin to an undercover agent.

Wilmington police on Saturday arrested Yvette M. Lehuynh, 22, and her cousin, David Nhan, 20, at her home on Faulkner Avenue after she allegedly threw a revolver onto ice-covered Silver Lake Friday night.

The Faulkner Avenue home was under a stakeout for 27 hours before the arrests. Wilmington police had the suspects under periodic surveillance for about a year. They had lived on Faulkner Avenue for about 14 months.

Inspector Mark Jepson was watching the house on Friday night, when he observed Lehuynh and Nhan leave the house. They proceeded down Grove Avenue, stopped. Jepson then saw Lehuynh leave the car, and throw a package about 50 feet onto the lake.

Jepson followed the pair back to their house. He then returned to the lake and retrieved the package, a bag containing a revolver with its numbers filed off.

The pair were arrested on Saturday morning, charged with possession of an altered firearm.

The gun is being tested by state police ballistics experts for possible links to various crimes believed to have been committed by Vietnamese persons. In recent months, there has been a great deal of publicity of a Vietnamese gang, called Ping On, members of which have allegedly been on a crime spree not only in Boston and Lowell, but in various other cities around the country. Detectives from Los Angeles and other cities have contacted Wilmington police regarding the gun.

Jepson said the house on Faulkner Avenue was apparently used as a "safe" house, a base of operations where the suspects lived, apparently without any local criminal activity.

Only live dogs need be licensed

Many dog owners or former dog owners were surprised last week to receive notices of fines for unlicensed dogs. Wilmington Dog Officer Ellen Davis sent out hundreds of notices.

The response was pandemonium. In many cases, the reason the dog was not now licensed was that the dog was dead. There were also some cases where the dog was not licensed, and the fine was justified.

The dog officer is now trying to sort out which dogs are dead, and which ones are not. She said that any unwarranted fines will be rescinded.

Davis said that persons receiving unwarranted fines should send the notice to the dog officer, at the town hall. If the dog is dead, note this on the fine notice. If the dog is licensed, give the tag number.

FREE OPINION OF VALUE

Revenge Frances Fay took her revenge on Harry Cunningham for joking remarks he made during the roasting of her husband, Bill Fay, Sunday night at the Sons of Italy Hall.

'That's what friends are for'

Bill Fay honored at roast

by Arlene Surprenant
Bill Fay has a lot of friends. This fact was well documented Sunday night as 311 of them braved the wintry weather to pay tribute to the former principal of both the North and West Intermediate Schools. Some people, like former School Superintendent Walter Pierce, traveled far to say a few carefully chosen words. It was a fitting way to close the door on one career and open it on a new opportunity as owner of American Traveller Inc.

The well planned "roast" was held, strangely enough for an Irishman, in Wilmington's Sons of Italy Hall. Friends from the Wilmington and Tewksbury school departments, town boards, Rotary Club, and American Traveller, as well as former classmates and students, family members and baseball buddies were all on hand to see who could outdo the other in the gift of gab and memory recall.

Following a social hour, guests enjoyed a five course roast beef dinner prepared and served by Jean's Caterers. Next on the agenda was a real treat -- the history of the Fay family depicted on the small screen through the creative efforts of teacher Dan Spriggs and Dave and Laraine Cassell.

Attendees went ape over the first Fay on the family tree, and met such famous Fays as Cleopatra Fay (the first travel agent who conducted tours of the Pyramids), Full of Bull Fay (the tour guide for Custer at Little Big Horn), and Cave Man Fay (calling the first Rotary meeting to order). Each slide in the all too brief show had Bill's head superimposed on photos dug up from heaven knows where.

Some of the best entertainment of the evening was provided by Wilmington's favorite moderator

Michael Cairra, though, in all fairness, he had some stiff competition from the likes of Mike Tamaro, Jim Gilligan, Harry Cunningham, and others.

Cairra took good humored pot shots at nearly everyone. In referring to Bill's ability-to-get-a-job prowess: "He holds a record in this town for most times refused." On Walter Pierce: "His greatest contribution to Wilmington was leaving for Florida." On Tony Romano, Assistant Principal at Tewksbury High: "He's Tewksbury's greatest athletic supporter." Of Rocco DePasquale: "The biggest string puller of them all." On Bob (Lucky) Horan: "Whoever thought cleaning Carol's windshield would bring him to this."

The highlight of the evening, however, was the long anticipated roast itself. Everyone, it seemed, had something to say about Bill Fay. The crowd was convulsed with laughter as, one by one, a series of approximately 21 friends gently and, at times not so gently, ribbed Bill. They touched on such topics as his early school days, his administrative ability, his talent or lack of same on the baseball diamond, and his salesmanship.

Fred Cain, for instance, told of Bill's early days as an auto salesman, ending with the comment that "the school system didn't know what they had coming to them, but we knew what was leaving."

Social studies teacher Mike Tamaro referred to the "reign of terror" at the North Intermediate during Bill's tenure there and Bill's habit of "believing everything he's told in case anything turns out to be true."

Jim Gilligan's deadpan style had the audience in stitches as he outlined Bill's "illustrious baseball

He should know Chairman of the Board of Selectmen Rocco DePasquale presented Bill Fay with an official citation of the board, proclaiming him as the "third-best halfball player in the town of Wilmington." It was signed by Rocco DePasquale, "the best half ball player in the town of Wilmington."

career" under himself as coach.

"I went back looking for highlights in Bill's career and there aren't any," he said at one point, adding "as a fielder, Bill was more than adequate; he was inadequate."

Rotary's Harry Cunningham digressed a bit. As a "carpetbagger (relative newcomer)" to Wilmington, Cunningham took some well placed jabs at "townies" (Definition of a townie: If you read the 25 Years Ago column in the Town Crier and understand anything, you're a townie); Ken Spinelli (referring to a small photo of Ken in an ad) "I met Ken Spinelli four months ago; that's a life size picture."; and Wilmington ("There's a movement before the town fathers to change the town flower to oregano").

Walter Pierce took honors for his longish speech, both humorous and serious, covering Bill's days as principal. Pierce said he asked Dr. Sager to come "help set him (Bill) up" and she replied, "Why not; it will be the third time." He told the audience Bill "did proceed to make a name for himself at the North Intermediate, not one of which can be said here." In a more serious vein, he shared thoughts on an essay entitled 'Don't be Afraid to Fail,' telling Bill not to worry about failure; worry instead, he said, about chances you miss when you don't even try.

At the end of the night, Bill was gifted with a handsome set of golf clubs, an Ultimate Golf Game for home use, and several pieces of luggage made possible through donations from numerous friends, as well as a desk set from the Wilmington School Committee and many revealing gag gifts. Perhaps the most well received gag gift of all came from Superintendent Horan, who presented Bill with his superintendent certificate from the State Dept. of Education. He was holding it since June, 1985, he said.

I'm thrilled (and) I'm happy, in spite of what Jimmy Gillis said about 17 doorprizes to Hawaii," said an obviously overwhelmed Bill Fay of the affection poured out to him last Sunday. He went on to thank family and former teachers and to tell those in attendance his secret really is "to surround yourself with good people."

Sharing the night with Bill was his supportive family: his mother Bella, his wife Frances, and their five sons Jonathan, Tim, Michael, Kevin and Patrick.

According to Athletic Director Jim Gillis, who said the idea for the evening came last October, those serving on the committee which pulled the whole thing off were Bobby Shelley, Jack Cushing, Dolores Silva, Ricky Silva, Claudia Dufresne, Sue Shellenbach, Rita Boudreau, Dan Spriggs, Robert Horan, Henry Dembowski and himself.

Furor over four memorial plaques

by Arlene Surprenant
Discussion reached new heights--or lows, depending on your perspective--as Wilmington School Committeemen last Wednesday got into a flap over four plaques slated to be displayed in the renovated high school.

Plaques for former Athletic Director Lawrence Cushing Sr. and late committeeman John Brooks, as well as two recognizing the school committee and the Permanent Building Committee were the cause of the ensuing commotion.

Town meeting voters had approved a plaque and the dedication of the new gym to the memory of Cushing. The school board had approved a plaque and the dedication of the new science wing to Brooks. PBC members said they would pay the cost of both.

After being told about the two oversized memorial plaques, some committeemen and audience members had reservations about both the size and cost.

Though she repeatedly asked what the cost would be, Shirley Callan never received a definitive answer beyond the fact that it could run in the neighborhood of $4,000 to $5,000 each. She told fellow members the money for the plaques, especially the school committee one, might be better spent for "direct educational purposes." Tony Accardi said he was sure the PBC would not go along with an exorbitant sum.

Both Callan and Anne Linehan complained of the large dimensions.

"The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier doesn't have a plaque that size," Linehan said.

There was also a reference to the fact that some selectmen felt their names should be on Cushing's plaque.

Everyone tried to be heard during discussion on a smaller plaque recognizing the present school committee. PBC Chairman Bernie LaVita told members his group would not pay unless the board agreed to add the name of Principal Paul Fleming. Bridget Zukas said even though principals shouldn't be given a plaque for doing their job, they should also include former principals Harold Garrett and Richard DeRosa.

Tony Accardi opted for adding the names of former committeeman Linda McMenimen and John Brooks, who were on the board at the beginning of the renovation project. Linehan said it was only right to add the name of Dr. Carol Sager if Supt. Robert Horan's name was included. Callan said she didn't want her name on the plaque at all. She asked, instead, that money saved be put toward textbooks.

McMenimen couldn't contain herself any longer and spoke up, amid much laughter, from the back of the room: "I think John Brooks would roll over in his grave if he knew his name would be placed between Carol Sager and Linda McMenimen."

Motions to include Fleming's name on the school committee plaque and for that committee to pick up the tab failed.

Contract ratified

In a unanimous vote, school committeemen ratified the Wilmington teachers contract at their meeting January 14.

Bridget Zukas explained that though she originally voted against the contract at a prior session because she wanted the same percentage raise for all teachers, she changed her mind because she feels the teachers are satisfied.

The Wilmington Teachers Association previously ratified the contract in a 123-46 vote.

Frankly speaking

by Kevin John Sowyrda

As I carefully spun the a.m. dial on my pocket radio one Saturday evening, I chanced upon a talk show emanating from the gentle city of Baltimore, Maryland. Along with great Easter Parades, Baltimore is known for educational radio. Anyway, the program host had as his guest a soft spoken man from Minnesota, who had an interesting occupation. The guest was an innovative fellow, who had just put together Associated Publishers Inc. Their job was to translate the Soviet newspaper Pravda into an English version for readers in the United States.

So, the thought came to my mind, 'what the heck.' Imagine the educational experience of an introductory subscription to the major newspaper of the Soviet Union. And, with a quick call to St. Paul I found myself a subscriber to the same paper established by V.I. Lenin in May of 1912.

The first thing that hits you when you read Pravda is that it is a communist rag. A thousand apologies for coming to the point so quickly, but its the best and most accurate way to start any article regarding Pravda. To begin, the first thing that catches the eye is the slogan of the paper. In the same location in the New York Times where you would see "all the news that's fit to print," Pravda has "proletarians of the world, unite." That's the same phrase used in Cambridge to call a town meeting.

Next, is the general format of the tabloid. The leading story in the December 15 issue was "Energy from Chernobyl," which noted that power was once again flowing from the nuclear power plant which in April of 1986 had decided to have a baby. That news is about as reassuring as discovering Oli North has been named Secretary of State. The article wasn't too quick to mention anything regarding the effects of radiation on a couple of thousand people, or for that matter every cow that grazes and gives milk in western Europe.

As for advertising, you do not find any in the Soviet press. As the economy is controlled by the government, there isn't a tremendous need for the Russian counterpart to Filene's Basement to advertise womens' shoes at $9.99. Competition and prices aren't the problem here, simply the availability of consumer goods. As a result, people who are addicted to clipping coupons would instantly dislike a subscription to this foreign paper.

But the most perplexing part of Pravda is how it, and perhaps the Soviet people, define 'news'. You would be looking in vain to find the most recent reports on the Soviet campaign in bordering Afghanistan. In direct contrast to how our own media reported on the war in Vietnam, with almost day to day soap opera dialogue, the Soviets and Pravda treat the war in Afghanistan as a minor political matter. Consequently, a majority of the news on page one concerns production, in both the areas of manufacturing and agriculture. So, with your Monday morning cup of coffee, you can digest such facts as a 4.9 percent increase in wheat production (which still isn't enough to feed everyone in the country), or a 3.9 percent increase in oil.

And if none of that should tickle your fancy, which is most likely, you flip to page four and read letters to the editor. This is where you can tell how people in beautiful Moscow enjoy waiting in line for their Soviet frosted flakes. The one thing I expected to see on the letter to the editor page, but did not, was a missal from Anne Linehan. Maybe censorship has its good points.

Blast off
A day off from school Tuesday gave youngsters near Glendale Circle in Wilmington the chance to build a jump in the woods. Jimmy McHugh launched himself into space on a "sno-nut" -- an inflatable tube. Jimmy built the jump along with his brother Bobby, Brian Ashdown and Don Wheeler.

The Humble Farmer

Do you know me?

The frightened woman was on the verge of tears. She sat stiffly on a hard oak chair behind a small bare table, facing the man who paced the floor in front of her. He tapped the side of his black leather boot with a swagger stick as his heels rang out against the highly polished mahogany floor. The grim flow from a naked bulb revealed her to be well dressed - indeed, she could have written the best-selling book "How to Dress Like Old Money."

She ran her hand through close cropped, very fashionable and hideous hair, then threw her face in her arms on the table as she cried out, "How much longer?"

The man tossed his stick on the table, breathed on his monocle and began to polish it with a crisp monogrammed silk handkerchief. He was a man whose time had come. For years he had repressed a burning desire to arrest fat bureaucrats who ate oily sandwiches at cluttered desks. However others saw him, he often considered himself an avenging angel - taking great pleasure in establishing order where before there had only been eternal chaos. When he spoke his words were coldly deliberate. "You have not yet told me everything, I think."

She raised her face from the protection of her arms. The tears were there - honest tears flowing freely now, but not to impress him. Tears can't earn pity or understanding from a man without a heart, face or soul.

"Let's go over it all again to make sure we have it right."

He carelessly dropped a sheaf of papers onto the table and tapped it lightly with his stick. "Whom are you working for?"

"I've told you - everything - over and over. And you've got it in writing. Why can't you believe me? It's all there." She waved her hand at the papers and tried to swallow several times.

He filled a paper cup with water from a basin in the corner and brought it to the table. "Drink this."

He sat on the edge of the table and attempted a confidential manner as the woman took several small sips of the water. She shuddered and pressed her shoulders against the solid oak in the chair, her attention riveted on his stainless steel tooth.

He leaned forward and hissed into her face, "I've tried to make it easy for you. We simply want to know for whom you work - a list of your business associates."

As if on cue, two Bulgarians wheeled in an electronic device. They turned and left at once without speaking.

It's all in there, in that thing, she thought. There isn't anything he doesn't know. Her mind reeled as she thought of an unpaid student loan. Funny to be thinking of that now, but it's part of my life and he knows about it - even that he knows.

Very coldly, very deliberately, he pressed several buttons and her whole life flashed before her on the big screen--confidential information on her present modest home in Grand Bay. She's spent happy childhood summers there with grandmother Bonnycastle. No, there was no keeping even the smallest bit of information back. You might not want to tell but they had ways of finding out. And, sooner or later, they knew everything.

She looked away from the screen. His polished boot was on the desk and he was sneering contemptuously at a minuscule smudge near the toe.

He pushed another button. "Transcripts of your telephone bills."

"I've told you everything--everything." Her nostrils flared. Perhaps a mistake. She dare not risk offending this man. Then, in a more conciliatory tone, "There's nothing more. I've told you everything. Why can't you believe me?"

Once again he leaned forward into her face. She was nearly overcome by his scented breath as he whispered, "I'm approving you for up to a thousand--don't leave home without it."

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

I have been following with keen interest, new stories in recent Town Criers about zoning issues in our town. I was shocked to read that a residential development may be built on land that I thought had been purchased a few years back by the Town of Wilmington to project one of our water wells. I have also detected subtle suggestions that people who oppose denser zoning changes may be against proposals to improve low income housing accommodations in our town. I feel that this is a very unfair assumption. Residents who are attempting to prevent zoning changes are not elitists or bigots. I feel that they are just asking the rest of us to take a good look at our town's natural resources, i.e. our water supply and the local rivers and brooks.

We must protect the future health and well-being of Wilmington residents. If our water supply deteriorates, we will be faced with serious problems.

In the past 22 years, I have observed a progressive deterioration in the water that comes into my home. In recent months, there has been a pink, slimy residue in the water in our section of town. Prior to that we have observed a series of water problems such as odors, discolorations, and excessive rust deposits. We must attempt to involve more residents in the problems and issues surrounding the protection of our natural resources.

Let us all begin to look at the problems facing our town. Although everyone has a right to seek the best and most profitable use of their land, we must take an intelligent look at the far reaching consequences of local decisions. We must be fair to the individual but, more importantly, we must protect the future.

Betty Landrigan

Dear Larz:

Do our town officials have nothing better to do with their time than to order the "execution" of two dogs presently being held in the dog pound? I cannot believe that they are so upset over a couple of stray dogs staying a little longer in the pound. I should think that their time would be better spent on the many important issues facing the town of Wilmington.

Thank God we have such a dedicated, loving and compassionate dog officer who really cares what happens to these animals. Ellen Davis does everything she possibly can to find the rightful owners of these dogs, or she will place them in another home. Naturally, this takes time! The most important thing is that she doesn't have to have them put to sleep.

I called Ellen last Thursday evening and asked her how much these two dogs were costing the taxpayers of Wilmington. From what I understand, the kennel has to be heated or the pipes will freeze, and most of the food has been generously donated by many Wilmington families, as well as local pet centers and animal hospitals.

What I would like to know is the names of the town officials who gave Ellen the ultimatum last week (although I think I have a good idea). All I can say to this town official is work on the important issues and problems in Wilmington and let Ellen handle the problems of the pound. She has certainly proven herself 1,000 times over! To Ellen: I thank you for everything you are doing for the strays in the town and for your immediate response to residents' calls.

To the many families of Wilmington, drop off a bag of rawhide bones or food to the pound - every bit counts. Let's show these town officials just how we feel!

Annette Pellegrini

Dear Larz:

In regard to the article in the January 14, 1987 edition of the Town Crier, regarding the two dogs who according to a town official, have over stayed their welcome. The article proves what a dedicated and compassionate person Ms. Davis is.

The town of Wilmington should be proud of the job she is doing. She is a far cry from the last dog officer Wilmington had. I realize the pound has rules and regulations, but considering the cost to the town, and the success of Ms. Davis in finding new homes for strays, what's the problem?

I only hope the article brought about a happy ending for the two dogs.

W. Meehan

Dear Larz:

"Plaque A Mania" set in at the last school committee meeting on January 14. It seems like everybody and his brother wants their name in bronze in the renovated high school. The whole thing is too political.

The board of selectmen wants a plaque, the permanent building committee wants a plaque, the Wilmington School Committee wants its names in bronze (Sans Shirley Callan), and of course the only two plaques that were voted on at town meeting were for John Brooks and Larry Cushing.

I voted for the plaque for John Brooks and Larry Cushing, rather to dedicate the gym to Mr. Cushing and the science wing to Mr. Brooks.

All these plaques will run a minimum of $1,800 (each) plus the big one for Mr. Cushing that is rumored to run quite a bit more. For the public information the children at Wilmington still do not have up-to-date science equipment and the money is running out fast.

Come on fella, too many people worked on this Renovate to Educate and certainly the parent group headed up by Mrs. Stockbridge did more than just a little. How can this be? Price and Glory.

Mr. Lavita said he would not pay for a plaque for the school committee unless Paul Fleming's name was on it. Mrs. Zukas pointed out that Harold Garrett was principal during the renovation period as well as Dick DeRosa. So it goes on and on. The school committee did not want Carol Sager's name on the plaque even though she was superintendent at the time.

In talking with John Callan who was president of the PBC when they built the Shawheen, Glen Road and Boutwell he told me they never even considered a plaque with their names on it. There were too many people who spent too many hours to get the funds passed and in fact it was the town's voters who needed the plaque, if anyone, they paid for it.

So, if in fact all of this is running close to $10,000 maybe a second look should be given to all of this. The kids should come first and after all it is their names on diplomas that we really want to see.

Wilmington police news

An 80 Trans Am, owned by Anthony Cenca of Clark Street was stolen on January 13 from the Wilmington Plaza, and was recovered by the Lowell police later in the evening. Two Lawrence men were arrested when they were found in the car.

Shortly after that Wilmington officers found an 84 Oldsmobile sitting in the Plaza which had been stolen in Methuen. Lowell police will investigate any possible connection between the two young men they arrested and the recovered Oldsmobile.

That same evening Officer Redding arrested a Reading youth, Michael LeBlanc at the Reading Police Station. The youth was arrested on a warrant issued by the Woburn Court for failure to appear in court after a release on bail.

Next morning, Wednesday, at one o'clock, Officer Bob Richter arrested a Lowell man after a high speed chase down Route 38 into Woburn. Joseph Moriarty, 21, was charged with OUI, driving so as to endanger, and a number of other motor vehicle violations.

Moriarty was finally stopped after he ran off the road at the rotary near Route 128. He was admitted to bail an hour and a half later, to appear in Court Wednesday morning.

Two local juveniles were arrested Thursday evening by Officer Chris Neville, after an investigation into the theft of an off-road recreation vehicle. Both were charged with receiving stolen property valued at over $100.

Friday evening the alcohol enforcement team was assigned to work on potential alcohol problems at the local package stores. The emphasis was to be the discouraging of adults in the purchase of alcohol for underage drinkers. Officers King, Peterson, LaRivee, Richter and Hanlon were under the direction of Sergeant Palmer.

The first arrest was at 7:30 p.m. Barry Anderton, 22, of Hathaway Road was charged with public drinking in North Wilmington. He was also charged with having threatened to commit a crime, to wit, assault and battery on a police officer. A companion with Anderton fled on foot. He has been identified, and will be summoned into court.

Two more youths were arrested in the parking lot a short time later. Mark A. Cronin, 18, of Corcoran Road, Burlington and Michael Rutherford, 18, of Cambridge Street in Burlington were charged with public drinking and underage possession of alcohol.

Michael Maiella, also 18, of Sheridan Road, Wilmington was arrested and charged with underage possession of alcohol and public drinking.

At 7:30 p.m. four more arrests were made. Michael D. Haley, 22, of Marcus Road was charged with procuring alcohol for minors, Thomas Feeney, 17, of Gowing Road was charged with underage possession of alcohol. Two juvenile males were also charged with underage possession of alcohol.

Two people were arrested Friday night by Officer Joe Waterhouse, after a traffic stop revealed that warrants had been issued for both persons. Georgia Comeau of Lynn was held on a Salem, Mass. Police warrant. Ian Buchanan of Brownfield, Maine was arrested on several warrants issued by the police departments of Salem, Lynnfield and North Reading.

Officer Chris Neville arrested William Perry of Oakridge Circle Friday night, on the basis of a Tewksbury default warrant.

There were arrests of four more persons, later that evening. Shawn Murray, 21, of Hathaway Road was charged with possession of a Class D substance and with procuring alcohol for youths. Russell Kashian, 18, of Sheridan Road, Cindy Borgeson, 18, of Burt Road, and Susan Theriault, 17 of Draper Drive were charged with underage possession of alcohol.

Saturday morning officer Jon Shepard arrested Robert Murray of Lynn, charging him with operating while under the influence of alcohol. He was also held on a Saugus police department warrant.

Saturday afternoon, after an all night stakeout by Inspectors Mark Jepson and Mike Celata, two persons were arrested on weapons charges. Yvette M. Lehuynh, 22, of 23 Faulkner Ave., Wilmington and her cousin, David N. Nhah, 20 of 166 Highland Avenue Brockton were charged with the possession of a firearm while unlicensed to do so. They were also charged with possession of a firearm with altered serial numbers. Both were formerly of Vietnam.

Mrs. Lehuynh is the wife of a man arrested last week in Somerville, who, officials in the drug enforcement agency believe, is connected to recent incidents involving Vietnamese gangs and the drug trade.

Both individuals were arraigned in Woburn Court on Tuesday (Jan. 20) and released on $5000 cash bail.

There were 13 accidents and 20 alarms in Wilmington during the week of January 13 to 20. The police department made 23 arrests. There were two cases of break and entry, two disturbances, four cases of domestic problems and six reports of larceny. One person was reported missing.

Two stolen vehicles were recovered, there were two trespassing complaints, and one threat reported. Trailbike complaints numbered two, and there were seven reports of vandalism. Five persons were placed in protective custody.

School committee has yet to meet on budget

by Arlene Surprenant
It took over a half hour for the Wilmington School Committee to approve and release the minutes of November 12 last Wednesday, largely due to some concerns expressed by member Mitchell Spiris.

Saying "minutes are a great way to pick up loose ends," Spiris went on to question why no dates had yet been set for budget meetings and when officials would get moving on a personnel recruitment program. Both topics were mentioned in the minutes.

Spiris said he was concerned because "this committee has not deliberated at one meeting on $10 million (the budget)." Members argued over who was responsible for setting the dates.

Chairman Bob Peterson said any member could set a date just by making a few phone calls. Shirley Callan said she expected the superintendent to take the responsibility while Bridget Zukas said, traditionally, it has been the responsibility of the chairman to set the dates and "take the heat."

Superintendent Robert Horan told members he was ready to begin budget meetings and expected to use the same format as last year with department heads coming before them to explain their needs. He foresaw that this year they will need to either purchase a new set or upgrade the present set of financial software. Later in the meeting, the committee decided to discuss the budget on January 21 and 24 and February 7.

Spiris suggested Horan start soon to contact local teacher and college placement agencies so Wilmington will be able to fill teacher and administrative vacancies as soon as the need arises.

"I think you need choices to get the best people to come to Wilmington," he explained.

Horan pointed out they expect to use the service of the new consortium of New England Schools which will "give us New England-wide search capacity, and that's a good start, at this point." A lot will depend on next year's staff needs, which he said he will know within six weeks.

Tony Accardi suggested they adopt a wait and see attitude until that time.

Students of the month at Wilmington High School

Elena Revelas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Revelas of Grace Drive and David King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brian King of Powderhouse Circle, have been named Wilmington High School January Students of the Month.

Elena is actively involved in student council, student school committee, model congress, prom committee, yearbook, and the foreign language club. She is a member of the Math Honor Society and the National Honor Society.

In addition, Elena is a varsity cheerleader and is presently involved in an internship program under the direction of Representative James Miceli. She is applying to the University of Virginia, James Madison University and DePauw University.

David

David ranks eighth in his class and is a member of the National Honor Society. He plays the trumpet in the concert/marching band and the jazz/rock ensemble, and is an active member of the Math Honor Society, DECA, and the Methodist Youth Fellowship. He also plays baseball.

David will be attending Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute for Mechanical Engineering.

Honors for and Eagle Eagle Scout Christopher Sullivan receives congratulations from Wilmington selectmen, tendered by Eagle Scout Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, an honorary member of Troop 136.

Eagle Court of Honor for Chris Sullivan

Christopher Sullivan, son of David and Beverly Sullivan of Columbia Street, Wilmington, was awarded the rank of Eagle Scout, with Bronze Palm, Saturday evening. The Eagle Court of Honor, conducted by Troop 136, was held in the basement of St. Thomas Church, with Fr. Charles Hughes giving the Invocation. It was the first Eagle Court in Troop 136 since the Eagle rank was awarded to Walter Seppi, twelve years ago.

Eagle Scout Reginald (Buzz) Stapczynski was one of those who took part in the ceremony. Stapczynski, town manager of Wilmington, was awarded the Eagle rank on July 4, 1965, in Clawson, Michigan.

The presentation was by Scoutmaster Tom MacFeeley, and the Eagle Scout charge was given by Robert Blouth, Scout Commissioner of the Greater Lowell Scout Council. Blouth also holds the Eagle rank.

Sullivan received many commendations, during the ceremonies, among them being a letter from President Ronald Reagan, and one from Ben Love, Chief Scout Executive of the United States.

The Court of Honor was well attended, with over 150 persons present.

Eagle Scout Sullivan began his scouting career as a Cub Scout in Pack 136, with Patricia Fenton being the Cub Leader. Mrs. Fenton was present at the ceremony Saturday evening, and read a poem she had written, "That's one of my Cub Scouts."

The New Tax Rates

Individual tax rates will be cut sharply by the Tax Reform Act, but it will take two years to reach the target rates.

Because the tax cuts for this year actually don't take effect until July 1, the 1987 rates are considered "blended" rates that reconcile the old tax with the new one. There are five rates: for couples filing jointly, 11 percent for those earning less than $3,000; a marginal rate of 15 percent between $3,000 and $28,000; 28 percent between $28,000 and $45,000; 35 percent up to $90,000, and a rate of 38.5 percent over that.

For the 1988 tax year, there are supposedly two tax brackets--15 percent and 28 percent--but, what with surtaxes on high-income taxpayers, the top rate is actually 33 percent.

Starting in 1989, the rates and the standard deductions are supposed to be indexed for inflation; the personal exemption will be indexed starting in 1990.

Lynda Short

Lynda Short of Country Club Drive, Tewksbury has been experiencing first hand that cold wave which has been devastating Europe for the past week. Linda is home in England, visiting her folks.

Her parents live in Essex, north of London, in an area where there is little if any central heating for homes.

There is a very unaccustomed three feet of snow on the ground. When her father goes out to get more coal, it is a case of chipping the frozen coal before he can get it into the coal scuttle.

When Lynda left Tewksbury on January 13, the temperature was a balmy 50 degrees.

Political waters warm up

The political waters in Wilmington are warming up, with four candidates now circulating nomination papers for two seats on the Board of Selectmen. James Stewart is the only incumbent. Former selectman Carl Backman, planning board member Michael McCoy and school committee member Anthony Accardi have also taken out papers.

The race opened up earlier this month with the announcement that Chairman Rocco DePasquale would not seek re-election.

The school committee race, meanwhile, is very quiet. With Phil Fenton having bowed out, incumbent Bridget Zukas is the sole candidate in an election for two seats.

Incumbents have also taken out papers for two other positions. William Strob is seeking re-election to the housing authority. Redevelopment authority member Vaughn Surprenant has taken out papers for re-election.

The deadline for taking out papers is March 5.

Democratic caucus

Registered Democrats in Wilmington will caucus on Sat., Feb. 7 at 2 p.m. in the Fourth of July Building. Ten delegates and four alternates will be elected to attend the 1987 Democratic State Convention.

Wilmington school news

by Arlene Surprenant
Extended Day Kindergarten
The Wilmington School Committee is expected to vote on the extended day kindergarten and elementary computer labs at its January 28 meeting in the Town Hall. Supt. Robert Horan says that there was some delay because officials are still looking at facts and figures and the impact of staff available next year.

Shawsheen Elementary School
A special assembly will be held January 27 to honor former Principal Robert Barrett, art teacher Dorothy Nylén, and kindergarten aide Helen MacDonald who will retire this year. The assembly will start at 9:45 a.m. and is being sponsored by the school PAC, which has purchased small gifts to recognize the contribution all three made to the school in the past years.

During the past few months, children at the Shawsheen Elementary School were involved in a contest to select a school logo. The logo selected by the students was a shark. To promote school spirit, Principal Robert Coffill will be designating a weekly "T-Shirt Day." The Shawsheen Shark will appear on these T-shirts, as well as on a school banner.

Due to an overwhelmingly successful PAC fundraiser, each child will receive his or her T-shirt as a gift from the PAC. The shirts are expected to arrive in four to six weeks.

The monthly PAC meeting was held on Friday, January 9. Of the many items discussed, the group decided to bring folk singer Rick Charette in to perform for all the children at the end of March. It was also voted to spend $250 to purchase additional volumes of "New True Books" for the Media Center. Board games will be bought for indoor recess for each classroom. There will be two end-of-the-year dinners for fifth and sixth graders and their parents.

Mr. Jack Agati will present the first in a series of four lectures for parents on Why Do Kids Do the Things They Do? (and what can I do about it?) on Monday, February 2. Session 1 will help parents and teachers understand the life style under which each child operates, based on the child's birth order. More information on the evening lectures may be obtained by contacting the school.

Horace Mann Grants
Fourteen teachers who submitted 11 applications for funds provided under Chapter 188 were awarded Horace Mann Grants. The teachers outlined projects dealing with curriculum innovations and other subjects. A total of 32 "well written and deserving" applications were received and reviewed by the screening committee.

Grant recipients and their projects are: Frederick Crispo, Grade six industrial arts curriculum ($2,500); Laura Stinson, K-6 Physical education curriculum ($2,500); Eileen Lemieux, Florence Kelley, and Harriet Jennings, Testing strategies for elementary schools ($3,500); Suzette Hall, Developing a video teaching curriculum ($2,500); Elaine Levine, Improving student transcript availability ($2,500); Stoddard Melhado, Peer leadership program ($2,500); Carl Olsson, Resource catalog, U.S. History, grades 6-12 ($2,500); Nancy Stouffer, Curriculum guide/Book writing ($2,500); Marjorie Quinlan and Michele Nortonen, Social studies unit ($4,500); Martha Mahoney, Book Talks ($2,500); and Janet Merlino, Writing and illustrating children's books ($1,206).

Wilmington High School
Looking Ahead: The high school PAC is busy making plans for a Scholarship Dance to be held March 27, 7:30 p.m. to midnight at the Knights of Columbus Hall. The sit down roast beef dinner will cost $12.50 per person. All profits will go toward scholarship aid to several deserving seniors. Last year, the PAC gave out $1,000 in scholarships.

If you can't attend the dance, contributions can be made to the scholarship fund.

The next high school PAC meeting will be held January 26 at 7:30 in the new cafeteria. All parents are encouraged to attend.

School Improvement Councils

The following citizens at large were appointed to Wilmington's School Improvement Councils at last week's school committee meeting: Mrs. Jeanne DeMore (Wildwood School); Mrs. Debbie Thomas (Woburn St. School); Mr. Paul Martell (Shawsheen School); Mr. Morris Anderson (North Intermediate); Mrs. Lorna Stockbridge (West Intermediate School); the Rev. Charles Hughes (High School).

The above join other members representing the parent, teacher, and student segment of the population.

Generation at Risk

Just a reminder to attend the large screen showing of Generation at Risk January 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the North Intermediate School. A panel discussion and question and answer period will follow. This timely program is sure to generate many comments. It will also allow YOU to become involved in stopping the frightening statistics concerning drug abuse, teenage pregnancy, suicide, etc. Everyone is invited to attend.

For those Who Don't Know (Like Me): Beverly Shay is really Beverly Shea. Apologies, Bev.

Author's Note: We would like to print school related news from EACH school in the system. If you would like to make a contribution to this column, please drop information off at the Town Crier office no later than Monday afternoons or call Arlene Surprenant at 658-5696 by Monday evenings.

Emergency Management Agency expands communications system

Members of the Wilmington Emergency Management Agency spent a cold Sunday morning last week at their headquarters in the Old Town Hall as they worked on the expansion of the emergency communications system.

From the rear of the roof a new antenna was put in place, which will now expand the short wave radio system to the 80-10 meter bands. This will assist the town in emergency communications with area cities and towns in the event of another incident such as Hurricane Gloria.

Braving the cold and some steady snowfall were radio team members Mort Grant and Carl Noelcke, and the Agency Coordinator Walter Sowyrda. According to Sowyrda, the Wilmington Emergency Management Agency "now has one of the best communication systems for short wave radio in Middlesex County."

The Agency was greatly assisted by the Wilmington Fire Department which assisted with the ladder truck. The Agency thanks the Fire Department for its cooperation.

Writer visits

Local mystery writer John Bellairs met with students during a workshop on writing. This was part of a program created by teacher, Nancy Stouffer (right) and media specialist Martha Mahoney (left) to have the children write stories and have them published and put into the school library.

Mystery writer visits Shawsheen School

by Frank Bonfilio
Last Tuesday mystery writer John Bellairs visited the Wilmington Shawsheen School to help aspiring mystery writers. The program, funded by a federal grant, was started last year by teacher Nancy Stouffer. It gives the children a chance to write their own stories and have them "published", and placed into the school library.

This year the program included a visit from a best seller novelist

John Bellairs. Bellairs, a local writer from Haverhill, gave the children helpful hints on what they should do if they ever want to become writers.

The program started with a question and answer session. Children asked Mr. Bellairs questions on where he got his ideas for stories, characters, and how he came up with the exotic, exciting places where his stories take place. Bellairs was very personal with the children and had them interested in what he had to say.

Some of his works include, "The Eyes of the Killer Robot," "The Revenge of the Wizard's Ghost," and a best seller of fourteen years, "The House with a Clock in Its Walls." In his lifetime Bellairs has written ten children's mysteries and three for adults.

After the assembly Bellairs autographed books and then proceeded to help children chosen by Nancy Stouffer and the media specialist, Martha Mahoney, write mystery stories.

Stouffer and Mahoney feel that this type of program will continue and grow in the years to come.

obituary

Melvin Southmayd

Melvin 'Mel' Southmayd of 36 Glen Rd., Wilmington died suddenly on Sunday morning, January 18, 1987, at Choate Hospital. Mr. Southmayd who was 68 years of age, was born in Wilmington the son of the late Ethel Maude (Parker) and the late Leon F. Southmayd and had been a life-long resident. He was a self-employed automotive mechanic and, prior to retirement, owned and operated Mel's Cito Station, Wilmington, for over 20 years.

Mr. Southmayd served for many years as an usher at St. Thomas Church and was a former member of the Wilmington Lions Club.

He is survived by his wife, Madeline M. (White) Southmayd, his son, Thomas R. Southmayd, his grandchildren, Daniel and Erin Southmayd all of Wilmington; his sisters, Mrs. Florence Fillion and Mrs. Edith Butterworth, both of New Hampshire; his brother, Donald Southmayd of California. He also was the brother of the late Elmer, Wilbur, Arthur and Howard Southmayd.

The funeral was held from the W.S. Cavanaugh & Son Funeral Home, 374 Main St., Wilmington this morning (Wednesday) followed by a Funeral Mass at St. Thomas Church con-celebrated by the Rev. Francis Daley of St. Agnes Church, Arlington and the Rev. Thomas Reynolds of Immaculate Conception Church, Stoughton. Interment followed in Wildwood Cemetery. Pall bearers were Kenneth Sugarman, Louis Capaldo, Roger Carignan, Stanley Hibbins, Larry Noel, Manuel O'Brien.

Bruce Anderson paintings on display

Longtime resident of Wilmington, Bruce Anderson, owner of a commercial art studio in Boston, is now retired to devoting his time to his first love: fine art painting.

Anderson paints in the so-called primitive style--reminiscent of Grandma Moses--but relies mostly on his imagination, resulting in a unique mix of a little of yesterday, today, and tomorrow, but always with a sense of humor, always reflecting the happy side of life.

While attending school in New York, he saw the Hindenberg pass overhead on her last flight before exploding--which he never forgot, and always somewhere in his paintings you will see a Zeppelin. It's part of his world of fantasy: "only in a balloon can you see the beginning, the middle, and the end of the parade."

Bruce Anderson has been featured in many one-man and group shows, and has published prints and posters which have been well received both locally and nationally. "I try to get a little love, a little smile,--I want the viewer to walk away a littler happier" says Bruce. (Having one of his calendars lets you smile all year long). Do visit this charming exhibition at the Arlington Trust in Wilmington Plaza this winter.

Museum-A-Month

The historical and cultural diversity of Massachusetts is one of the richest in the nation. The Lowell heritage State Park invites you to join them as they discover some of the unique features of the commonwealth in their Museum - A-Month program.

One Saturday a month we will be visiting other Heritage State Parks and the museums located near them. Bus transportation will be provided free of charge for all three trips, and although all State Parks have free admission, some museums charge a nominal fee. Each trip will meet at the Visitor Center parking lot (off Dutton St.) at 8:30 a.m., and will return at 3:30 p.m. A bag lunch should be brought. The schedule of trips is as follows: Jan. 17, Lawrence heritage State Park, Museum of American Textile; Feb. 7, Fall River Heritage State Park, The Marine Museum; March 7, Blackstone Valley Heritage State Park, The Stanley Woolen Mill.

Reservation are required as bus space is limited. To make reservation of for further information call 459-1000. For a recorded message of weekly events call 453-1950 in the evening.

Massachusetts State Science Fair

Future scientist are invited to participate in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Sponsored by The Boston Globe, MIT and the Massachusetts State Science Fair, Inc. The event gives students from public, private, and parochial schools throughout the commonwealth the opportunity to compete for more than $30,000 in scholarships and awards.

Participating students can pursue almost any aspect of science (Astronomy, Behavioral Science, Biology, Biochemistry, Chemistry, Computers, Earth Science, Electronics, Engineering, Mathematics or Physics), and exhibit their projects to their peers, a panel of judges and the public. Prizes for the best projects include scholarships of $500 to $1000, trips to the International Science & Engineering Fair and the National Youth Science Camp, and an Earthwatch Expedition.

A project entered in the fair must be the work of a single student and must concern itself with only one subject. Each project must develop a central theme and answer a definite scientific question. A project showing two completely unrelated ideas is not acceptable.

For further information contact Marianne Callahan at The Boston Globe Public Affairs Department at 929-2649.

Andover Craft Show

Organizers of Handsprings Arts & Crafts Exhibition and Sale, the large-scale spring show at Phillips Academy, Andover, have chosen Sunday, April 26 for Handspring '87, and invite artisans to contact them now.

The Ladies Benevolent Society of Phillips Academy invites New England craft people to file applications (deadline Feb 1) and the public to circle April 26 for the juried event. Last year's third annual Handspring, with 160 exhibitors from Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island and Vermont, and local food caterers, drew 3,500 people to the Academy's huge sunlit fieldhouse on the Andover campus.

Handspring '87, 11 a.m.- 4:30 p.m., will feature 10% fine art and 90% quality crafts; a cafe with an international menu; a bake table of home made goods; door prizes; and occasional music by students.

Everything exhibited at Handspring must be the artisan's own work, and must be hand crafted --no kits, and no dealers may exhibit. A jury will screen applicants on the basis of photographs of slides submitted in advance. Craftspeople wishing to exhibit may obtain applicants by sending a postcard to Judy Hamilton, Phillips Academy, Andover, MA 01810 (617-470-1430 or 475-6579). Applicants must be postmarked no later than Feb. 1, 1987.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society

Perfect your horticultural skills and become an active volunteer at the Massachusetts Horticultural Society (MHS).

The Education Department of the MHS is seeking people with an interest in gardening for whom we will provide intensive training in horticulture. In return you will then be able to help the MHS dispense valuable horticultural information. This might be by answering the MHS plant information hotline, writing fact sheets or media advisories, teaching classes, or leading tours.

If you enjoy gardening and sharing your knowledge, this is an opportunity for you. Training for the program will begin in February. Call Madeline Zadik today at 536-9280 to receive an application form and more information about becoming an MHS Gardener.

AIM Headquarters

Saturday, January 24, 1987 from 7:30-10 p.m., you are cordially invited to join us for a movie, popcorn, and conversation at the new headquarters in the Fourth of July Building across from the common.

The social evening is for disabled citizens of Wilmington and their friends. If you need help or can volunteer your services, please join us Saturday nights.

Women's health programs offered at Health Center

As part of a continuing effort to better meet the health care needs of women, the Regional Health Center in Wilmington is pleased to offer a series of educational programs addressing women's health issues. The first program is entitled "Management of Premenstrual Syndrome" (P.M.S.), and will be conducted on Thursday, February 26, from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m.

The program, which will be taught by Mark A. Macklis, M.D., obstetrician/gynecologist, will discuss symptoms of the syndrome, possible causes, medications available, coping strategies, and the therapeutic role exercise, diet and victims can play in the management of the syndrome. The program will close with a question and answer period.

Topics for future programs in this series include: the early detection and prevention of breast cancer, menopause, and an infertility lecture.

For registration information, or information on future programs, please contact the Community Health Education Department at 657-3910, ext. 567.

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is a division of Choate-Symmes Health Services.

NORTHEAST WART CLINIC
Laser Surgery for Warts

Laser Surgery is one of the newest and most significant applications of laser technology in the last two decades. Laser Surgery takes advantage of the intense heat generating properties to cut and remove tissue without the undesirable side effects that sometimes result from using a scalpel. The Laser produces a man-made light that has only one color and does not produce any undesirable radiation. The Laser we use is a Carbon-Dioxide Laser and it is the most versatile of the medical Lasers.

In BusinessNew Main Street retail center in South Tewksbury

A new six-unit retail center is nearing completion on Main Street, Tewksbury.

The retail center, located at the corner of Main and Salem Streets, is owned by C&A Realty Trust but is being leased by the Carlson Real Estate company.

Greg Rogers, a spokesman for Carlson, said there are three tenants signed up to move into the retail center. Two other tenant firms are negotiating for space in the center.

According to Rogers, a shoe store, a dry cleaner and a retail convenience are currently signed to occupy the center, which he said offers 14,000 square feet of floor space. The individual units range from 1,400 to 3,000 square feet, he said.

Two other tenants now looking into the center include a women's clothing store and a video rental shop, Rogers said.

The retail location will be fully landscaped before opening, Rogers said, and an aluminum facade is now being constructed.

The retail center is expected to open sometime in March, Rogers said.

Rauseo brings Arctic Windows to Tewksbury

Rauseo & Co., Inc. industrial realtors of Boston, Lynnfield, and Danvers have announced the recent leasing of 20,000 square feet of office and light industrial space in Tewksbury to the Arctic Windows Co.

Michael J. Rauseo, president of Rauseo & Co., Inc. negotiated the long term lease on behalf of the Druman Trust, the owners. Rauseo & Co., Inc. served as exclusive agents for this property.

Arctic Windows, formerly of Everett, will use this building at 540 Main St. (Route 38) as their new corporate headquarters. It will contain areas of administrative offices, telemarketing, and retail display.

First Bank announces executive appointments

First Bank Chairman and Chief Executive Officer George L. Duncan has announced three executive appointments at the bank. Richard W. Main has been named president/chief operating officer; Walter L. Armstrong has been named executive vice president, lending; and Paul F. Surprenant has been named executive vice president, operations.

Duncan said, "growth, success and well-deserved recognition is the essence of these executive appointments. This includes the individual accomplishments of each of these bankers, plus the overall success of First Bank during the past years. Since 1977 we have grown from a bank with less than $50 million in assets to more than $300 million and eleven offices today. First Bank is now growing at the phenomenal rate of 30 percent per year, which means that we are doubling our size approximately every three years. With this success in mind, First Bank's Board of Directors approved my request for these appointments which, I feel, will help assure this solid growth for the future as well. That is of key importance to us, our customers, and our community."

Duncan went on to say, "I have known Dick, Wally and Paul for many years as friends and fellow bankers and I highly respect them personally and professionally. I am looking forward to the tremendous progress that can result when a bank has an executive group with such close ties and a team-approach philosophy."

Richard W. Main has more than 16 years experience in Greater Lowell banking. He joined First Bank in February of 1973 and was appointed executive vice president in January of 1981. Well-known in the community, Main is actively involved with many local nonprofit and youth organizations. He presently serves as a director of the Town of Chelmsford Scholarship Fund, is past president of the Chelmsford Chamber of Commerce and is a member of the Greater Lowell Homebuilders Association.

Main received his bachelor of science degree from the Lowell Technological Institute and his MBA from Suffolk University.

Walter L. Armstrong, a life-long resident of Lowell, has been in banking for 28 years. He joined First Bank in 1980 as vice president of commercial lending and was named senior vice president in 1982. He is involved in numerous community activities which include St. John's Hospital Men's Guild, Lowell YMCA Alumni, D'Youville Manor Guild, the Old Scouts and Vesper Country Club. In addition, he has been affiliated with the American Cancer Society, the Heart Fund, and the United Fund. He is also a senior lecturer at the University of Lowell.

Armstrong is a graduate of Lowell Technological Institute with a degree in business administration.

Paul F. Surprenant is a 26-year veteran of Greater Lowell banking. He came to First Bank in 1978 as a vice president and was named senior vice president of operations in 1980.

During his years with First Bank, Surprenant has watched his operations area grow to the point that it now occupies a substantial portion of the top three floors of the bank's new 37,000 square foot facility at Clark Road in Tewksbury. The first floor of the building houses the bank's 11th branch office.

His community activities include the Northeastern Alumni Association of Lowell and past president of the Chelmsford Rotary Club, among others.

Surprenant received his bachelor's degree in finance from Northeastern University and currently serves as a senior lecturer at the University of Lowell.

Wildcats vs. Redmen wrestling

Wildcats roll early, Redmen come back

The Wildcats hosted the Redmen of Tewksbury in a dual meet last Wednesday night and fell short, 42-24.

The Cats did roll up an early 24-6 lead in the light weights. Mike Connell (100) won by forfeit, Mark Vachon (114) pinned Joe Belinski, Mark Russell (121) scored a 7-1 decision over John Gennitti, while Don Sullivan pinned his opponent in the second period. Allan Tate (134) rounded out the scoring for the Cats with a 7-3 decision.

The Redmen answered back with six straight pins of their own. This surge boosted them to victory at 42-24.

On the junior varsity side, Wilmington posted its' ninth win on the season. They are now 9-3 overall. Winning for the Cats were Jim Sarasin, Ken Chisholm, Bob Gantz, Kevin Brennan and Mark Palmisano.

Wildcats play Lowell tough

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

The Wilmington Wildcats played Large School power Lowell tough in a 60-48 MVC basketball defeat last week before holding on to edge Methuen, 59-57 in Friday night hoop action. The week's results left Wilmington at 2-4 in the Small School division and 5-4 overall.

Methuen scored the final 10 points of the game Friday to give the locals a real scare.

The Wildcats had real balance on offense with an attack that featured center Mike Lombard (16 points, 17 rebounds), George Fuller (14 points), Rob DeSantis (12 points, four steals), Jim Moynihan (six points and seven assists in his best game of the season) and Pelletier who came off the bench to give Lombard a rest and grabbed six rebounds while scoring four points.

Wildcats' coach Dave Orndorff was pleased with the early display before holding his breath at the game's conclusion. "We came out in the first quarter and went inside to Mike (Lombard), who scored the first six points before Methuen changed its' defense and tripled Mike down low," noted the WHS coach. "We then went outside to DeSantis and Fuller who shot a combined 9 for 17 from the floor. Peter Torrell threw in a 40 foot shot at the first half buzzer to give us a five point lead."

"We ran off the first six points of the second half, with Moynihan and Pelletier each scoring four points in the third quarter. Lombard was in foul trouble with Pelletier replacing him at this point. With Mike on the bench we opened up our lead from seven to 11 points," praised Orndorff.

"Everyone played in this game, but the big key was Moynihan's overall play and Eric Braciska's defense on Dean Salvo who had averaged 23 points over his last three games. He finished the game with 10 points, six of them coming in the last quarter."

Lombard played his best game of the year in the loss to Lowell. Mike finished with 22 points and 14 rebounds, getting able support from mates DeSantis (10 points) and Fuller (nine).

Wilmington broke Lowell's vaunted 1-3-1 press with little difficulty early in the game, and the Cats were down just 39-37 with 1:43 to a play in the third quarter before Lowell began drawing fouls to eventually pull away.

Still, the Wildcats proved in this contest that they could play with the big boys.

TMHS record falls

by Rick Cooke
Sports Editor

Eight years from now, another hot shot freshman will probably come along and reach the heights, but those heights were extended to a new level by a superb athlete Friday night, as Tewksbury High School senior guard Tim Boudreau shot past former TMHS scoring king John Hurley with a 34 point performance in Tewksbury's 83-50 rout of the Dracut Middies.

Boudreau now has 891 career points after 10 games this season. Tim, who started for coach Bob Melillo as a freshman, will now be gunning for the vaunted 1,000 point mark.

Hurley, who was in attendance at the game, finished a three year stint at power forward with 889 points, six points better than Jim Meuse who pumped in 883 from 1970-73

Outdoors column

by Bill Conlon

Ice fishing contests come and go and most are barely worth the effort it takes to get up before dawn to risk frostbite and hypothermia.

But instead of the usual local tournament, with perhaps a $200 top prize, how about a tournament offering a $10,000 door prize just for signing up? Add enough cash and prizes to total $100,000 and the contest starts looking like a big-league fishing derby.

Such is the scale of the eighth annual Pepsi fishing derby in New Hampshire. The derby was once held exclusively on Lake Winnepesaukee in the Granite State, but has expanded over the years to include the entire state. An estimated 5,000 ice anglers will sign up for the event, scheduled for the last day of January and the first of February.

The sign-up fee of $12 allows anglers to take part in the two-day fishing derby. The biggest prizes will come out of Winnepesaukee, but the contest is state-wide. A total of $100,000 in cash and prizes is up for grabs.

The N.H. Fish and Game Dept. has tagged about 150 lake trout and released them back into Winnepesaukee. Of these tagged fish, nine will be eligible for the biggest prizes.

Top prize for the tagged fish is a $27,000 boat, motor and trailer combo; second prize is a 1987 Ford Bronco; third is $10,000; fourth is two prizes of $5,000 each; and fifth place is four winners of $2,500 each.

However, the odds of catching one of the tagged fish on a lake the size of Winnepesaukee, then having that tag picked for the biggest prize, are about the same as winning the state lottery.

Pulling in a fish with a losing tag number is still worth $100 each, and a fish with a previous year's tag is worth $50. At the end of the tournament, all the numbers from the tagged fish caught will be put in a hat, and the number drawn will be worth $1,000 for the lucky angler.

Pepsi is also offering separate prizes of $2,000 for the heaviest laker taken during the two day event, and $1,000 for the second biggest.

(Don't go away yet -- there's still much more to come.)

The biggest lake trout taken will pull down prizes of $150, $140, $130, $120 and so on down to $60, on each of the two days. These cash prizes will be awarded for the biggest lakers taken anywhere during the derby by registered anglers.

So, just for the sake of discussion, let's say you enter the derby and decide to fish Lake Sunapee, instead of Winnepesaukee, and pull out a monster lake trout. The prizes could be as much as $150 for the biggest laker on the day it was entered, $500 extra for the biggest laker overall, and the $2,000 Pepsi award if the laker was the biggest taken during the derby. That totals $2,650 for one fish, without even fishing on Lake Winnepesaukee.

Prizes are also offered for off-species fish, with cash awards of $100, $90, $80, $70 and $60 going to the heaviest bass, pickerel, yellow perch, white perch and cusk, respectively, on each of the two days. That works out to a $100 top prize for the biggest bass, $100 for the biggest pickerel, etc., on each day. Also, the heaviest off-species fish taken during the derby will be worth an additional $500 award, one for each species.

While tagged lakers will be found only in Lake Winnepesaukee, the tournament is open on any fresh water in New Hampshire.

For those who prefer not to brave the cold and ice, there will be generous door prizes offered throughout the derby. Every half hour, from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. on both days, a ticket stub will be drawn worth $30. At 4 p.m. on both days, one ticket stub will be drawn worth $500. Finally, one ticket stub will be drawn at 4:30 p.m. on Sunday, at the end of the derby, worth $10,000.

Headquarters for this year's Pepsi fishing derby will be at Heskys Park on Route 3 in Meredith, on the shore of Winnepesaukee. Bait, chow, derby tickets and N.H. fishing licenses will be on sale at the headquarters trailer.

Tickets will be on sale until 1 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 31, at the derby trailer and at other bait and tackle shops in the area.

Prize fish must be entered by 3:30 p.m. to be considered for that day's prizes. Fish may be registered until 5 p.m. on Saturday for Sunday's prizes. Naturally, fish entered for Saturday's prizes may not be entered again for Sunday's. Ties are broken by weight, then by length, then time of entry.

The Meredith Rotary Club, which is sponsoring the derby, reserves the right to cut open any fish entered, and all participants are asked to follow all N.H. fish and game laws. Game wardens will most likely be making their rounds throughout the derby.

Incidentally, the tournament will go on as planned, whether or not there is ice. As of last weekend there was safe ice covering some of the smaller bays and coves on the big lake, but open water was visible on much of Lake Winnepesaukee.

More
applause

Tim Boudreau's teammates had plenty to cheer about Friday night as the TMHS senior became the school's all-time scoring leader. See the story on page 11 of the sports section.

Smoking policy to be enforced

by Arlene Surprenant

The present smoking policy at Wilmington High School—a policy that states there will be no smoking except in designated areas—will be strictly enforced at after school functions and sporting events in the future.

The decision came after school committee members heard that fans, as well as an officer on duty and a custodian at a recent sporting event, abused the policy by smoking in what they thought was a designated area in a lobby outside the gym. This reportedly caused ventilation problems.

Supt. Robert Horan said, originally, No Smoking signs had been posted. But because residents ignored them and cigarette butts were dropped on the new gym floor, Athletic Director Jim Gillis informed him the signs were taken down and receptacles for the butts were provided.

Several committee members felt the policy was difficult to enforce at evening functions. Mitchell Spirits, who brought the matter to the board's attention, asked why there was a discrepancy between what they expect of students during the day and residents outside of regular school hours.

From now on, committee members said, the designated area will be outside the building and not in the corridors. No Smoking signs will be reposted. No Smoking announcements are expected to be made at future events.

Wilmington senior topics

Whist party Jan. 26

On Monday, January 26, the second whist party of the month will be held in the Senior Center starting at 1:30 p.m. Prizes for the whist parties are donated to the seniors by the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs. Smaller gifts are purchased by the committee from the drawing held at the close of the games.

Buzzell Senior Center

For residents of the town reaching the age of 60, and new residents 60 years and older, the address of the Buzzell Senior Citizen Center is 15 School Street, off Middlesex Avenue, opposite the common.

Services

Services are available to seniors through the Senior Center. I.D. discount cards can be obtained free of cost any day Monday through Friday. Fuel assistance applications are made out for those who qualify. Call the Center for more information - 658-2258, 657-7595.

Blood pressure, diabetes test, flu and pneumonia shots and weight and temperatures are read or taken by nurse Abbie on Thursdays starting at 1:30 p.m. in the medical room. A podiatrist and hearing aid specialist are at the center once a month to check and treat senior ailments to the feet and hearing. Counseling, information, and referrals for legal assistance, homemakers, nurses, Medicaid, Medicare, SSI, Social Security and Medex are available through the coordinator.

Meals on wheels are delivered to shut-in seniors by calling the Center. We do require the condition of your confinement, name, telephone and address. Meals are also served at the lunch site daily from 12:30 p.m. To be served a meal you must call the Center. Please do not go to the school without ordering a meal through the Center. It is not fair to other seniors who have ordered their meals, only to find out when they arrive that the women preparing the meals have to take away from them a portion to serve you.

Transportation

Transportation is also available by the Council on Aging minibus to seniors without transportation is also available to seniors without transportation of their own to medical and other appointments. It is necessary to call the Center the day before. The minibus may be used for other purposes when and if the driver is available. A senior is allowed one trip a week to Wilmington Plaza. It is expected on that day you do all your business banking, shopping etc. When it is all completed you must call the Center for a return trip. With the large number of persons requesting the use of the minibus it is not possible for the driver to run back and forth to the plaza. A few seniors feel the minibus is their private taxi. Unfortunately, many of our seniors live alone without available transportation. They also need our transportation services.

Food stamps

Many of our seniors can qualify for food stamps. The food stamp program was instituted to allow low-income persons young and old to purchase necessary nutritional food. If you qualify and do not apply you are only hurting yourself. Call the Welfare Office in Woburn for more information. Maximum gross income for a household of one is $569 and a household of two $764.

BURLINGTON

Quaint and a little wonderful

Last of a series
By JIM ROUILLARD

It is quaint — and a little wonderful — to imagine life in Burlington during the last 200 years.

Flip, hodge podge and at least three chickens figured among the local color as the 19th century opened and Woburn Precinct, newly named, was officially less than a year old.

Yet in 1800 the area christened Burlington already was more than 150 years old, in white man's terms, at least.

"The wilderness of the very early days had given way to a tidy village situated in the center of a fruitful farming community," according to Burlington's Ed Fogelberg:

"The economy of the new town was definitely agricultural and almost self-sufficient for it boasted four saw mills, three grist mills, a leather shop, two country stores, four school houses, at least one blacksmith shop, and five taverns ...

"The farms here were small, the farmer tilling probably ten acres or so with the rest of his land given over to pasture, mowing fields, wood lots, or waste and rocky sections ...

"Since he knew little about fertilization, the farmer rotated his crops ... Plows were made of wood plated and shod with iron by the blacksmith who also made his ox-chains, his heavy four-tined dung forks and two-tined pitchforks ...

"The farmer had on his home lot a house for his large family (children were an economic necessity); a barn ... a corn crib for his fodder; several assorted sheds ... a springhouse to furnish water and keep the milk cool; and the ever-present outhouse."

Fogelberg includes in his work two recipes "no doubt used by Burlington for a hundred years or more before the advent of stoves": Hasty pudding and the possibly less familiar "hodge podge," which he describes as a stew into which anything edible was thrown:

"Boil for a long time over a slow fire either a brisket of beef, mutton, rabbits cut in quarters, veal, whole pigeons or poultry, or any combination. Add onions, carrots, turnips, celery, parsnips and a little parsley, a few green shallots, a clove of garlic, a laurel leaf, thyme, some spice, and maybe several large thick sausages."

From food, Fogelberg passes to early 19th century rustic industry and the ever-present theology:

"The three necessities of any settlement hereabouts were a minister, a blacksmith and a grist mill. The comment has since been made that 'perhaps some of the settlers would have been happier without the first, but all would have agreed that the last two were essential to the success of the community.'"

As for temporal refreshment: "That there were farmhouses here serving as taverns even before becoming Woburn's second parish there can be no doubt. By 1800 the names and locations of at least five can be given. ... (including) the Nichols Tavern very close to the farmhouse of Deacon Samuel Reed in which the library of Harvard College was hidden during the siege of Boston.

"In the center of town stood the Wood Tavern ... and the Marion Tavern, the stage stop on the line from Boston to Concord, N.H. via Woburn. In the easterly part of town stood the Winn Tavern or the Three Chickens Tavern on Wyman Street."

these taverns, apparently in prodigious quantities, according to Fogelberg: "Beside the usual rum, cider and beer available in every tavern there was also a concoction called 'flip' dear to the heart of every colonial" and reportedly drunk from huge glass tumblers large enough to hold several quarts.

And Fogelberg provides directions: "Fill a large earthen pitcher two-thirds full of strong beer, sweeten with sugar, molasses or dried pumpkin to taste, add a gill ... of

Turning the tables

A reader stopped by the other morning, and had this unusual story to tell us:

My roommate and I do our food shopping about once every couple of weeks. We generally pick a night early in the week, because there's less of a crowd to contend with and the food is often fresher and not so picked over. Last Tuesday evening we decided it was time to get our refrigerator and cabinets restocked. Off we went to one of those popular food chain stores located in a shopping mall. When we arrived in the parking lot we noticed that business was brisker than normal for early in the week. We had to settle for a parking space quite a walking distance from the store.

As we approached the store my roommate and I noticed an elderly woman shuffling slowly towards the automatic doors. She was wearing a heavy dark gray tweed overcoat, a dark stocking hat and black boots. She clutched a black handbag close to her chest. She could have easily been my grandmother or my roommate's grandmother. We met at the foot of the rubber mat that automatically opens the heavy glass door leading into the store.

My roommate and I stopped and waited for the old woman to proceed in front of us. She hesitated also, as if waiting for us to go first, but I insisted that she go, and after exchanging brief smiles and slight nods, she did. We had to edge along slowly behind her until she was completely in the store, then we had enough room to walk around her and get on with our business at hand.

Neither my roommate or I particularly enjoy food shopping. In fact, we've actually gone to those over-priced convenient stores occasionally simply to avoid crowded supermarkets. You pay more for the goods, but you save on the aggravation. Both of us surveyed the crowded aisles and then glanced discouragingly at each other.

"Well, we're here," I said. "We might as well make the most of it."

My roommate nodded. When you need food and toilet paper, you need food and toilet paper, if you know what I mean. So we grabbed a shopping cart and began to move slowly up and down the aisles. The counter at which we stopped first was the deli counter. This is where we have the most fun, because you

Movies

Pryor is supposed to be a glib real estate developer trying to finance a 32-screen cineplex with 18 seats per theatre (yuck, yuck). He ends up being framed and to escape the wrath of the mobster he crossed, he feigns insanity to avoid prison. While in a hospital under psychiatric observation, he rallies the panicked staff during a hurricane and saves the day by performing such feats as getting a helicopter into the lobby and blowing cool air through the elevator shafts for those suffering in the Intensive Care Unit.

The one decent thread running through this unfortunate film is the supporting cast. Angst-ridden Bob Dishy is delightful as a surgeon in a constant state of litigation inspired neuroses.

CONSUMING TELEVISION

By MALCOLM S. WHITE

There are eight million stories in the Home Electronics Jungle. This is one of them.

I am the survivor — someone who wanted to surprise his family with a VCR at Christmas. So began my search for the elusive "perfect" VCR.

My quest would require plenty of research. I had a head start; I work in television and have followed home video closely. I'd circled Christmas, 1986 as the time when VCR features would peak and the prices plummet.

This extensive background led me to the obvious first step: I asked my friends, like anyone else. I first talked to friends in the TV production business, who used playback machines every day. They'd know, I thought.

But no one did. They looked at me blankly when I asked them about home VCRs. I got a lot of: "I don't know much about the home stuff. It's all the same — only four or five companies actually make 'em, y'know."

I nodded sagely, as if I did know. I moved on to my personal friends who had VCRs. Those discussions generally went like this:

"So, how do you like your VCR?"

"Oh, yeah, it's good. Plays back, records, y'know."

"What kind do you have?"

"...Uh, I'm not sure, really. It's a Zenith, or a Sony or something. There's only three or four companies who make them, you know." Right.

From this I got inconclusive reports on about 12 different brands, made by those mysterious "three or four" companies. My research needed a little more depth, so I looked into the Consumer Reports cover story on VCRs.

It took a week to get through the ten pages of the text, charts and footnotes. This was a big report, even by CR standards (hey, refrigerators only got eight pages). It explained a wide range of features I didn't think I'd need, and rated more than 100 models. So many options and choices — now I was totally confused.

A big concern was compatibility with cable. Every brand seems to tout it — I knew from experience that few delivered. VCRs cannot (contrary to some sales pitches) receive a zillion cable channels or a scrambled pay-TV signal by themselves. I solved that problem by scheduling a service call from my cable company the same day I would set up my family surprise, to make sure it hooked up right.

My research helped me decide what features I needed. I didn't need many — the thing just had to play back and record tapes, go forward and backwards, and hook up to my cable box. I didn't need (or want) to see my golf swing in slow motion, and didn't plan to tape umpteen events in umpteen days. In other words, I just wanted it to work.

The next decision was where to buy — department store, appliance/video, or TV shop? Armed with CR's charts and facts, I looked into all three.

Basically, I was looking for a sales pitch. Since I didn't know much about VCRs, I wanted to buy one from someone who did. From a place that could fix it, if necessary. I went to the TV shop first.

"Do we have VCRs?!" Look at this baby — eight heads, HQ of course, MTS stereo, frame advance, Dolby, you name it."

I nodded wisely. "Well, is it cable compatible?"

"Compatible! Listen, this is like having a cable system in your house, my friend. Gets a couple hundred cable channels, HBO, Showtime, Disney, Playboy, all of 'em. And it's got auto index, audio dubbing, memory backup...."

I escaped. If that guy had ever seen himself on tape, he'd be in another business. Off to the appliance store — and a grand opening with attractive sale prices. I rated it a contender.

I was wrong. Never got to see a salesman at all — the crowd staring at the TVs and VCRs was overwhelming. I looked at the brand names and found few that were listed in Consumer Reports. Heard a salesman say "There's only three or four companies who actually make VCRs, y'know." Left for the department store.

Department store was a pleasant surprise. It had a good line of products at different prices, and the salesmen didn't try to snow me. Prices were good, too, compared to the TV store. I knew I could return it or get it serviced from the store.

A moment's hesitation...then I picked me out a sleek, jet-black model. Brought it home, saw the cable-TV guy that day, got it hooked up. Family's happy.

Just for laughs, Christmas afternoon I looked up the model in Consumer Reports. Not listed. The next day I called the salesman. He was prepared.

"Hey, don't worry," he said. "There's only about three or four companies who make the things, anyway..." Right.

Retired Men's Club

From Kyser to Miller — Jukebox Saturday Night had nothing on the concert played before the largest audience to crowd into the First Parish Congregational Church Hall, Wednesday morning, Jan. 14, to hear the Retired Men's Club of Wakefield Band, playing under the direction of Mr. Joseph Leary of Marblehead, Mass.

One of the songs played was the Retired Men's Club Band March, composed by band member, Charles Rodriguez. After the playing of the composition the concert was delayed several minutes to present Charlie with a gift for his outstanding work.

Missing his first concert in years due to illness, Chester Card, the 90 years plus founder was unable to attend.

Prior to the concert a business meeting was held with President Frank Day presiding. At the opening of the meeting President Day extended greetings for the New Year to all present.

Introduced to the membership were 15 visitors. Charles F. Hartford Jr., Wilson A. Herrmann, Vincent G. McNeil and Alden Wood, all from Reading, Anthony R. Junker, W. John Oliphant, Alfred Gosciniak, from Wakefield, Don Redding, John Eramo, from North Reading, Fred L. Callahan, William R. (Bob) Yundt, from Woburn, Tom Nova, Melrose, Calvin Kalishman, Stoneham, Gordon Stafford, Lynn, Kenneth G. Strom, Saugus, Arthur L. Zaino, Wilmington and Paul W. Curry from West Peabody. After final reading, membership cards were given to Roland Houds, Preston Weston and Anthony Bisquets.

After the reading of the birthday list of approximately 39 members, Past President George Flewelling, Lynnfield, on behalf of the Lynnfield members, presented President Day with a copy of the "History of Lynnfield." President Day announced the book would be available for all members to read. Before the reading of the sick and visitation list, Committee Chairman John Griffin introduced Russell Green and Joseph Callahan who were in attendance after a long absence. A moment of silence was held for three members who passed away since the last meeting, Joseph L. Hallwell, John Bergh and William Graham.

The attendance was announced as 321. The door prizes were won by Harry Scott, Woburn and Malcolm Choate, Reading. Reports were heard from the Bowling, Camera and Stamp Clubs.

The following travel program was given by Henry Murphy:

March 25, Kennedy Library, State Archives and Museum of Science; mid April a visit to the West Yarmouth Mariner Motel; May 18 will be the starting date for a five day trip to West Point and Hyde Park, New York.

Bennington, Arlington, Killington, Plymouth, Brandon, Montpelier, all in Vermont. June 6 will be a visit to see the Red Sox play the Detroit Tigers.

The next meeting will be Jan. 28 at which time several members from the staff of Prudential-Bache will give an interesting talk. They include Richard Childs, account executive, Barron Clancy, vice president Securities, talking on tax return, and Jim Rayburn, vice president, Graham Resources, will talk about the oil and gas situation as it pertains to today's outlook.

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Louis O'Malley of Winchester, told me that the secret of his popularity is attributed to "one" particular word and Lou explained it this way. "Years ago," he said, "when someone made a statement with which I adamantly disagreed I would almost shout, 'Baloney.' I lost a lot of friends that way because many people would avoid me like the plague. I learned to substitute the word 'Amazing,' for 'Baloney' and I enjoyed the lasting friendship of many people."

I borrowed that wonderful system from Lou. Last week when Kevin Fisher said, "I read your column every week and I always 'meant' to send a note to Dick Haggerty and tell him." There was a golden opportunity to use the word "amazing." But I guess you'd call it a Freudian Slip, I blurted out a resounding, "baloney!"

Apprentice barber, Bob Giguere said to George Guyette, "would you like your beard trimmed?" "No," snapped George, "just cut a hole in the middle of it, so my 'Sweetie Pie' can see the nikkie she gave me for Christmas."

Doreen Gale, attends Northeastern U. hoping to earn a master's degree in "Child Psychology." I tried some of it last week with my nephew Mark Aloisi. At a holiday party at Maureen O'Donnell's house I held a silver dollar and a quarter in the palm of my hand and asked Mark (who is about five years old) to take one and keep it. I was indeed surprised when he chose the quarter. I repeated that experiment many times with the same result. Uncle John Shea of North Reading called Mark aside later that evening and said, "Mark, don't you know that the larger coin is worth four times more than the smaller one?" "Of course I know that," Mark replied with a wry smile, "but so far I've gotten $12.50 from that stupid Woodchipper."

Doreen, what did I do wrong? People I called or met last week, Lois Erickson of Reading, holds bible study meetings. Lois, if anyone asks you when Adam was born, say Adam was born in the late afternoon, a little before Eve." Virginia Crocker, Woburn, Pattie Haggerty, Nancy Gonsalves and Tanya Canada, who was engaged recently to the handsome Courtney Andrews, Charlie Bilante, a star salesman for Ostuni's in Burlington, Bob Forsyth, of Billerica, a little league baseball coach, but a Major League gentleman. I have saved Betsy Rogers for last because I want to thank her for her kind words about Woodchips as she travels in the Middlesex East area in her capacity as Advertising Manager of the Supplement.

Did you get a "Dear John or Dear Jane" letter recently? Well it isn't the end of the world you know. Remember there's more than "one" pebble on the beach. Anyway, if you think that life handed you a "lemon," smile and make "lemonade" with it. What this country needs is "cleaner minds" and "dirtier fingernails." During his 100th birthday interview a salty centenarian told a reporter, "if I'd known that I was going to live this long, I would have made sure that I would take better care of myself."

I knew we were going to be hit with a snow storm on Jan. 2 because Paul Rao, my neighbor, returned the lawn mower on New Year's Day that he borrowed last summer. I hope he keeps the electric hedge trimmed and my wheelbarrow I wouldn't want the area to get hit with an earthquake.

I've seen five signs that say,

"Bear Right," in Wilmington, but all I've seen so far are two skunks, four squirrels and a flock of pigeons. The Woburn police are looking for a bank robber with a wooden leg named Bernie. John Nowak said, "I wonder what the other leg is called?" Many people sleep late every Sunday morning. They perhaps are true disciples of "St. Mattress," and are, "pillows" of the church. Some don't have any time for church, prayers or hymns. They believe there's plenty of time for that, "later."

My Aunt Nina, said to Fr. John Crispo, of St. Margaret's Church in Burlington, "Look at him, that old goat is in church and on his knees every morning. I remember when all he believed in was 'wine, women and song.'" "Now, now Nina," replied Fr. Crispo, trying to calm her down, "don't you know that the 'bigger' the sinner, the 'greater' the saint?" In abject resignation she exclaimed, "Now you tell me." There's nothing to talk about at the garden club meeting that my wife goes to, until somebody leaves.

Count that day lost when the low descending sun, views from your hand, no worth actions done. I have been waiting in vain for a proposal from an Arabian Princess, who is attending Cornell U. in Ithaca, N.Y. She loves my poems that are sometimes at the end of Woodchips. I must confess that I can't marry her anyway. My wife won't let me. John Foley asked me, "Were either of your parents weight lifters because after reading your column, they sure raised a dumb-bell. Adam and Eve lived in Paradise because they didn't have a mother-in-law and were able to raise Cain. Bob Raleigh, WBZ talk show host from Burlington was kind enough to forward letters from listeners who requested a copy of my Christmas Poem. Thanks Bob."

Free advice to engineering school students if your asked what a polygon is don't say, "it's a dead parrot." My Aunt Nina asked the department store manager where she could find the "Talcum Powder?" "It's three aisles over, please walk this way." Noticing that the poor man was more than a little bowlegged she exclaimed, "Mister, if I could walk that way I wouldn't need the 'talcum powder.'" Would you call up and order a new car? It would be OK if all automobile dealers were like Sam Waugh was in the late 1940s. My father would call him up and say, "I'm ready for another car Sam." Then, before it could be picked up, the car had to pass Sam's personal rigid inspection.

Furthermore, it would be re-inspected at every periodic tuneup. His son Richard Waugh inherited the business and he follows the same rule as his late father. I am proud to say that I know many automobile dealers who do the same. Congratulations to Michael Florio of Tewksbury, inducted into the Austin Prep chapter of the National Honor Society, Paula Nelson, new member of Kelly & Kompany, realtors, Wilmington, Victor Tremblay, Nynex employee of Tewksbury who worked during the storm restoring service, James Johnson Jr., new attorney and Robert Knottner, Sgt. of Arms Elect of the Wilmington Rotary Club.

The naranjilla, a relative of the tomato and potato with a taste like a combination of apricots and pineapples, is grown on high, rainy slopes in Andean valleys.

North Suburban Y offers dropouts second chance

What sort of future awaits today's high school dropouts? Unemployment? Welfare? Crime? Dismal prospects to be sure, but now there is a way out for some 25 area youths each year. The North Suburban YMCA is offering dropouts a second chance through its new counseling and instruction program, Opportunities, Inc.

The five month long program, for men and women 16 to 25 years old, combines GED instruction with life skills and job readiness training. The trainees will meet weekdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the YMCA's Youth Center on Main Street in Woburn. Bill Cole, the Director of Opportunities, Inc., describes the program's timetable: "For our first phase, which lasts three months we will divide our time equally between GED instruction and life/job skills training."

"The second phase, which lasts three weeks, is when our trainees look for and begin full time jobs. Daily meetings will continue during this phase for those trainees that need extra work at refining their job search skills."

"The final phase of the program, called the transitional counseling stage, provides group and individual counseling for graduates to help them with problems they encounter on the job or at home, and to help them change jobs when necessary." The start-up date for the program's first cycle is January 26.

The competency-based GED instruction will prepare trainees for the GED exam, allowing them to earn their high school equivalency diploma. By being individual and competency based, the instruction lets trainees progress at their own pace and only study those subjects which they are weak in. The life skills training, based upon the Adkins Life Skills program at Columbia University, teaches trainees such essentials as planning a career, getting along with others, looking for employment, and resume writing.

Explains Cole, "Our curriculum incorporates so many different skills and values it would be difficult to list them. While we teach specific things such as resume writing, we also are constantly trying to develop values like personal responsibility, which will make our graduates more attractive to employers and also make them better people."

The program will emphasize the development of self-esteem, in part to increase the trainees' motivation to achieve and also to improve their dealings with other people such as family members. One facet of this will be adventure-based counseling incorporated from the YMCA's successful High Flight program. Explains High Flight Director Mike Manna, "By taking troubled teens out and challenging them with an activity like rappelling down a 50 foot wall, you force them to confront their fears and overcome them. With the result being that they have greater self-confidence and less fear of life's challenges."

Both Cole and Manna feel that a trainee's fear when going for a job interview is to some degree similar to those experienced in High Flight activities.

Since the main goal of Opportunities, Inc. is to improve the job status of its trainees, a network of businesses has been established to monitor and provide employment opportunities for graduates. Although they will be provided with information about openings, trainees must independently schedule and go to interviews, and will compete for positions with any other job applicants. All trainees will be free to choose their employment and will be under no obligation to take on assigned positions.

The local business community has been very responsive to the program, reflecting the ongoing need for dependable employees.

The Opportunities, Inc. program is free to income-eligible applicants from Arlington, Burlington, North Reading, Reading, Stoneham, Wilmington, Winchester, and Woburn. Child care is provided free of charge to trainees.

Postage stamps to child's yellow pages

By William Pacino

This new column will detail events in the Greater Middlesex East area as well as Eastern Massachusetts that pertain to new business developments. Press releases and notices are welcome. Please send to William Pacino, care of this local newspaper.

Postage Stamp - electron beam drying

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing, Washington, DC, has purchased a 200kV electron beam drying system, to be integrated with an existing web intaglio press line, for the production of United States postage stamps. The drying system, manufactured by Energy Systems, 8 Gill St., Woburn, replaces an existing infrared drying system.

Strategies of NE Shippers

With international trade now comprising 16 percent of New England's economy, "International Strategies for New England Shippers" is the theme of the Second Annual Maritime Conference, sponsored by Massport, scheduled from 9 AM to 5 PM on Jan. 29, at the World Trade Center in Boston.

Currently, nearly 23 million tons of bulk and general cargo, worth nearly $8 billion to the local economy, pass through the Port of Boston annually. The privately owned bulk terminals of the Port handle cargo such as petroleum, natural gas, sugar, scrap metal, gypsum and salt. High Value general cargo, such as machinery, photographic equipment, computer parts, and consumer goods are shipped in containers through Massport's three public terminals in Charlestown and South Boston. More than two dozen steamship lines carry this general cargo between Boston and 175 world ports, with New England's major trading partners located in Japan and the Far East, Northern Europe, the Mediterranean, Australia and New Zealand, and South America. In addition, the Maritime Conference will address the future of steamship lines. For information on registering, call 973-5354.

Growing farm economy

New inroads in the marketing of Massachusetts-grown products will be made this year with the help of some $60,000 in entrepreneurial marketing grants which are being awarded to 14 farmers and farm cooperatives statewide.

The grants, which come to Massachusetts through the US Dept. of Agriculture's Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program, are being used to open up new markets for innovative products, establish and strengthen a number of grower cooperatives and help Bay State dairy farmers diversify.

Richard and Ruth Todrin of Braelin Farms, Colrain will receive $5,000 for promoting their unique line of garlic, onion- and dill-flavored alfalfa sprouts, which are already being marketed in the greater Boston, New York and Philadelphia markets.

Clark Chase III of Zodiac Farms, Westport will receive $2,500 to help broaden the market for his Mass-grown premium young lamb through newspaper advertising and direct mailing.

Barbara Brewster of Jonathan's Agricultural Enterprises in Marion, the producers of Jonathan's Sprouts, will receive $3,000 to organize a Mass. Sprout Development Assoc. The association will help further promote what has become

"LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL"
We decided to make our ad a little shorter in length. Some of our prospective customers felt it was too long to read, while still others assumed all those words meant our services were expensive. Quite the opposite is true. Our rates are very competitive, while we don't skimp on your needs. As we don't charge an hourly rate a flat fee will cover your function in its entirety including family parties, weddings, etc. Important to remember: we do not use tapes. Literally thousands of records at your disposal - from the 20's right up to today's hits. We are the only Disc Jockey service to be critically acclaimed by Boston Globe Magazine. So next time you need great music at your home or function hall give us a call and we'll do it all "Let the Good Times Roll." We play the music of your life. Reserve your date now with Paul Lazara at 944-4617. You'll be glad you did.

FACTS & FIGURES
There are 18 million businesses in the United States, according to the Internal Revenue Service. Over 98 percent of these are small businesses, with less than 100 employees.

In 1985, over 600,000 new businesses were created. The small business classification is the fastest growing segment of the business community.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON OFFICE SUPPLIES

A free guide on office supply sources and buying techniques may help you "mind your own business" better and get more out of your office supply budget. The 48-page booklet from the Quill Corporation, "How to Save Money on Office Supplies," addresses issues such as securing the best prices, how to avoid wasting money on "unused quality," how to read a catalog, how to get orders shipped for free, spot hidden charges and avoid surprises on an invoice.

For a free copy write: Quill Corporation, 100 S. Schelter Rd., P.O. Box 705, Lincolnshire, IL 60069-0705 or call 1-312-634-4800.

"Yeah, we could use some fruit and maybe some veggies."

Off we went for the vegetable and fruit aisle. This aisle can also be a pleasure to shop in, since you can frequently sneak a tiny tomato or pop a grape into your mouth as you take your time weighing and bagging your selections. At this store the microwave oven food and frozen dinners are located opposite the fruits and vegetables, and browsing up and down the rows of those items to see what is new can also be fun.

We picked out several items we both liked, and carried them over to the scale. As I began to weigh them, my roommate unwound several plastic bags from the role next to the scale.

"I'd like to stop by the frozen dinner section too," I said. As an after-thought, I added: "I'm not sure how much money this is all going to cost us. Have you got extra?"

My roommate set down the plastic bags, and reached into his back pocket to remove his wallet. As he was thumbing through it, I asked him to pass me the plastic bags. At this point, for some unknown reason, my roommate set his wallet down next to the weight scale, then handed me the plastic bags, which I proceeded to fill with fruit. Not more than a few seconds passed before my roommate turned back to pick up his wallet again.

The next thing I heard was my roommate yelling, "Hey, my wallet is gone!"

"Look to see if it slipped between the fruit," I told him.

"No, no, it's not there. Somebody's stolen my wallet!"

I checked the floor; there was no wallet there either. We both looked up to see who was standing around us. By now we'd begun to attract some attention from the other shoppers. One of them said, "I just saw some little old lady dashing down the aisle at the front of the store. I think she may have your wallet."

My roommate and I darted looks into each other's eyes at the same instant. He said, "I told you there was something funny about that old woman!"

Usually you hear about young punks ripping off handbags from helpless little old ladies. This time the tables were turned; a little old lady had ripped off my roommate's wallet! And apparently she could move a lot faster than she let on earlier, because we hurried to the front of the store and discovered that she had already disappeared out the automatic doors.

We ran outside, the manager of the store right on our tails, trying to figure out what was going on. We managed to catch a glimpse of her as she sped away in her car. I had the urge to cry out, "Stop that woman! She's got my roommate's wallet!"

but I realized it was too late. It was dark out, and we were unable to get her registration number.

The manager, after hearing our story, asked us if we wanted him to call the police. My roommate said, "No, because they are not going to do anything about it. And besides, nobody would believe this anyway."

All he could hope for was that she'd take the money and return the wallet. We had just enough cash on us to pay for the food. We headed home, both of us wondering how we were ever going to explain this one to our friends and family.

Cuisines of Italy

Boston University Metropolitan College will offer a three-session workshop, "Great Culinary Regions Series: Three Regional Cuisines of Italy", Tuesdays, Feb. 10, 17 and 24, from 6 to 9 PM.

With the chefs of three of Boston's finest Italian restaurants - Michela Larson of Michela's, Maurie Warren of Il Cappriccio, and Scott Allmendinger of Polcari's, students will learn to prepare three different types of Italian cuisine. At each session, the chef will describe a particular region, explain the menu and closely supervise the cooking of the meal which students will prepare and eat. Tuition is $245. Registration deadline is Feb. 4. Call 353-4130 for registration or further information.

Winter Rescue

The Mass. Civil Defense Training Academy in Topsfield will sponsor the 3rd annual "Winter Rescue" Program on Feb. 6, 7, 8 at the Academy Facility in Topsfield.

Communications, Search Team Organization, individual preparation (equipment, clothing, emergency medical procedures) will be covered prior to a rescue field exercise conducted on the third day.

The program is open to members of the civil defense community, EMTs, protective services personnel and the military.

For additional information, call 887-5775.

Orchid Society Show

The 10th Annual Mass. Orchid Society Show will be held on Feb. 13-15 at the Lexington Armory, just off Rt. 128 at Exit 44N (Rts. 4 & 225). Local orchid hobbyists, along with commercial growers from as far away as Florida and California will be exhibiting. A large plant sales area, workshop on growing orchids, and an introductory film "The Many Worlds of Orchids" will be featured.

From orchids to the cuisines of Italy, from winter rescues to pet insurance, COMING ATTRACTIONS has a little something for everyone. If you have knowledge of an event of interest to all, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. Our interests are varied and we are willing to go just about anywhere in pursuit of good times.
